Volume 26 Progress Publishers: Communal nurseries were set up for the care of small children, and efforts were made to shift the center of people's social life from the home to educational and recreational groups, the soviet clubs. Advised by Western governments, the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund Russia embarked on the largest and fastest privatization that the world had ever seen in order to reform the fully nationalized Soviet economy.

Russian reformists had no clear plan, and circumstances did not give them the
